REAL ESTATE FOR SALE:

The subscriber offers for sale, one dwelling house and lot on Oneida street; a number of lots situated in different parts of the city, and a number of village lots in Sauk City, Washington and Sheboygan. Also a few lots of land in Milwaukee and Racine counties, some of which are under improvement and all well calculated for farmers who desire a good location.

Terms easy and title good. Milwaukee,
Jan. 29, 1845.

Storage, Forwarding & Commission Merchant, would respectfully inform the public that he has purchased the Warehouse and Wharf lately occupied by Sweet & Jervis, near the mouth of the Milwaukee River, and will continue the business on his own account.

His wharf can be conveniently approached by boats and vessels from the Lakes, and teams from the country, being located on the country side of the river, below all the shoals, bends and bridges which render it impossible for the largest class of boats and vessels to go farther up the River.

A good supply of steamboat wood always on hand.

Liberal advances made on consignments.

D. L. HUNTINGTON.

1845. — DISSOLUTION—The super-sister ship heretofore existing between the subscribers, under the name, firm and style of Huntington & Bonnell, is this day dissolved by mutual consent.

All debts due to the firm will be settled by D. L. Huntington, and all other matters relating thereto, will be attended to by him.

We shall commence a series of articles under the head of "Rambles about Milwaukee," we intend to continue from time to time opportunity will permit. Among other things, we purpose visiting the West Ward, and giving a general statistical account of business and business prospects and improvements in that part of our city.

There is so much enterprise in Milwaukee, and so many new improvements constantly in progress, that one cannot fail daily to find a theme of local interest to write about. Subjects, which at first glance appear light and trivial to our readers, will, on a close examination, be found of importance and its successors, but to those whose attention is now directed to the Western country in search of a new location. "Give us something about Milwaukee," say all our Eastern correspondents—tell us how you progress in the "city of the wilderness"—how extensive is your business?—how enterprising your inhabitants!—how great your increase?—what are your resources?—what your future prospects?" &c. &c. To these, and a myriad other similar questions, we mean to respond in our desultory articles of "Rambles about Town." So attention, ye gentlemen of our Book Stores—we shall make you the first victims of our prying curiosity and public gossip. Clean counters, well-regulated shelves, and attentive clerks, if you please.

III Three columns of a small imprial sheet is but a very limited space for one in conducting a newspaper, to give a faithful transcript of all the events of the day. Much that would instruct and interest must necessarily be excluded. Such is our disability. Our desire for writing from one to two columns daily are often interfered with, in like manner as to-day.

We want to talk to our honorable Board of Trustees in regard to certain city improvements, which we mean to do as soon as we can possibly find space. We desire to enlarge somewhat at length upon the subject of the Ship Canal between this city and the Mississippi—the more perfect organization of certain counties in the Territory—the ultimate division of Wisconsin, and the erection of a separate Territorial sovereignty. We wish to give a list of all our Hotels, embodied in one article—of all our warehouses, and the forwarding interests—of the magnificent improvements on the "burnt district"—on the construction and regularity of our river wharves—the building and tending of the bridges—these are but a few of the many topics we desire to write about, and which, in due course of time we intend to lay before our readers.

IV We are in the midst of a delightful summer. The last month has been a season of almost unbroken sunshine, varied occasionally with a gentle shower, descending like rich incense from Heaven to fructify and make glad the earth. The rich grain fields of Wisconsin are gleaming with a golden hue, and waving and nodding under the gentle influence of the summer wind. Our boundless forests and wide-spreading prairies are clothed with a rich mantle of emerald, and the smile of happy contentment, peace and prosperity is over the length and breadth of our vast Territory.

"All is song and beauty in the land in these her Edens days."

V In another column we give the greater part of a letter from Gen. King, one of the associate editors of the Albany Evening Journal, and who, our readers will recollect, made our city visit about a fortnight since. He is one of the many thousands who are daily arriving in our city, delighted with all they see, and surprised at our unexampled progress and prosperity.

VI We learn that Com. Morris, of the Navy, one of the Agents sent out by the Government to examine the line of the Illinois Canal, preparatory to recommending a route for a channel of ship communication between Lake Michigan and the Mississippi river, is now at Chicago, and will reach this city to-morrow in the U. S. steamer Michigan.

This announcement is made for the purpose of inquiring into the propriety of giving Com. M. a public reception, such as will be compatible with the post he occupies, and agreeable to the feelings of the people. We suggest a meeting this evening, at the City Hotel, to take the matter into consideration, for the purpose of adopting measures to receive and escort him to comfortable quarters at some Hotel in the city. What say the people?

VII We acknowledge the receipt of three numbers of the Monroe Gazette, a very excellent weekly Whig paper, established at Monroe, Mich. by W. W. Hart. The Gazette is of respectable size and appearance, and conducted with creditable ability, and well deserving a liberal support from the Whigs of Northern Michigan.

VIII Our correspondents—"A Friend to Merit" and "Justice," are evidently at fault. We doubt much if either can adduce an excuse for the excited state of public feeling that must consequently be a necessary concomitant to such turbulent, effulent correspondence.

That the present is an era of wonders and marvellous events, none will essay to deny. By many it has been termed the age of humbug—by others, the age of iron—by others, the age of brass—but we think, after the reader has devoured the following precious relic, cast by the benevolent gods from Parnassus, he will agree with us that it might more properly be styled the age of poetry. Happily for the world it has been reserved for a period of centuries to produce such inimitable specimens of the genius of flowery numbers.

Our correspondents will perceive that, as high as Mr. Smith's poetic talent stands before the country, overshadowing and overwhelming as all admit its influence upon the people, there is "smother Richmond in the field," whose pinions, unless speedily clapped, will enable him to outstrip our revered poet in their rapid flight through the enrapturing regions of song. Now, gentlemen, don't your beaver and stand uncovered "in the presence," while we give the result of the bright oscillations of poetic genius of one at the East, who writes concerning

The Late Duke in PHILADELPHIA.
Schott and Willing did engage
In due time and hot,
Schott shot Willing willingly,
And Willing he shot Schott.

The schott shot made Willing quite A spectacle to see,
Willing shot Willing went right Through Schott's anatomy.

TEXAS ANNEXED.

From the Washington Union of Thursday.

I was prepared for a surprise on landing at Milwaukee, but what I actually saw far outran my expectations. The approach of the boat was the signal for the assembling of some dozens of runners from the different Hotels, at the outer end of the pier, and when I had worked my way through these I found myself in a maze of carts, buckney coaches and omnibuses. Within a few minutes after landing however, I made the acquaintance of Mr. Fulkerson, the proprietor of the Milwaukee Sentinel, and under his auspices was speedily installed in most comfortable quarters at the American. I took the next day to look round the town, and have been reflecting for two or three days since whether people at the East will believe my "plain, unvarnished tale" of what Milwaukee is, when they remember that only ten years ago Milwaukee was not. In 1835 the only inhabitant of the quarter section which now constitutes the principal part of Milwaukee was Mr. JUXKAU, an Indian trader. Now upon the same ground stands a town of some EIGHT THOUSAND inhabitants, and every steamboat, sailing vessel or propeller which comes up the lakes, brings constant accessions to this number. The greatest part of this influx of population, too, has taken place within five years back. Previous to 1830, the growth of Milwaukee was quite slow. But in the latter year it took a sudden start, and has gone on since steadily and rapidly increasing in size, substance and population.

Milwaukee is most advantageously situated.—From a point about a mile or two to the North, the shore of the Lake tends to the West, and sweeping gradually round forms a deep and wide Bay. The Milwaukee river, swollen by the waters of the Menominee, flows into the Lake near the centre of the Bay. Between, and on either side of the two streams, spreads a broad flat, originally low and wet, but now rapidly rising up, under the intelligent enterprise of the Milwaukee people, with sand from the river and gravel from the adjoining hills, the two together forming the best possible soil for a city plot. The flat extends back rather more than a mile from the Lake, and is from 1 to 2 miles in width, and it is enclosed on all sides, except of course, the water front, by a belt of table-land, some fifty feet or more above the level of the Lake, which is well timbered, and affords numerous and beautiful sites for private residences. Thus, it will be seen, if my description is intelligible, that while the flat formed by the alluvial deposits of the Milwaukee and Menominee rivers furnishes a spacious area for the business part of this growing town, the table-land which surrounds it like the wall of an amphitheatre, affords "ample room and verge enough" for thousands of delightfully situated public or private edifices.

I have said that Milwaukee already contains a population of eight thousand souls. It contains eleven churches or meeting-houses—9 Methodist, 1 Baptist, 1 Episcopalian, 1 Presbyterian, 1 Congregational, 1 Unitarian, 1 Lutheran, 1 Catholic, and two others the denominations of which I did not learn. Two more churches, one for the Catholics, which is to cost seventy thousand dollars, and one for the Baptists have been commenced.—Law flourishes here, as, strange to say, it seems to do in most newly settled towns. I think the profession in Milwaukee numbers some forty-two or three members. There are eighteen doctors, but the salubrity of the climate is such that about half of them are without patients. A large number of substantial and well filled stores line the two or three principal streets, and several of the merchants, for the last two years, have done a retail business to the amount of forty or fifty thousand dollars. There are three first rate, and about a score of second rate hotels here. The former class includes the Milwaukee House, the City Hotel, and the American. I found excellent quarters and the most obliging of landlords at the latter. It is kept by Messrs. Lock & Davis, and during the whole of my stay at Milwaukee was constantly crowded. Such was the case, too, with the Milwaukee House and the City Hotel, and, I presume, with other public houses; for the tide of travel through this place is marvelous to behold. The press is well represented at Milwaukee. The Milwaukee Courier, a neatly-printed and well conducted weekly paper, upholds the principles of the Locofoco, while the Milwaukee Sentinel, published daily, as well as weekly, and edited with equal industry and ability, by Messrs. Jason Dowsler and J. S. Fullerton, is a zealous and efficient champion of the Whig creed.

Many of the churches, stores and other buildings in Milwaukee are of brick, and the bricks used are made there. They are of a light salmon color and, I should judge, but little, if at all inferior, to the best of our Albany bricks. Milwaukee river furnishes an abundant and reliable water-power. The river, which is about 300 feet in width by 10 to 14 in depth, is dammed a mile or more above the town and the water for milling and factory purposes is drawn off through a fine canal. A fall of fourteen feet can be obtained, but ten is all that is used or needed at present. There is a large grist mill, with four run of stones, a saw mill, two furnaces, a planing machine, a wooden ware factory, which turns out three hundred pails, churns and tubs per day, and two or other establishments. The factories are all built between the river and the canal. From the latter they derive their supply of water and the former enables vessels of all sizes to come up and moor immediately alongside. The river runs through the heart of the town, and is spanned by several draw bridges. The ware-houses, several of which are of the largest class and most substantially built, stand close upon the water's edge, so that vessels can load and unload with despatch and convenience.

There seems to have been some want of judgment in the improvements which the General Government has made at Milwaukee. The river, where it passes through the town, runs a pretty straight course and so continues until within a few rods of the Lake, where it makes a sudden sweep to the south, winds along for a mile or more, nearly parallel to the shore, and finally turns into the Lake. If the bend had been cut through at the first bend (and some years since the river discharged itself into the Lake at this point) vessels coming into Milwaukee would have been enabled to lay a straight course from the mouth of the river up into the heart of the town. But instead of doing this, piers have been built out a thousand or twelve hundred feet into the Lake at the present mouth of the river, and a mile or two from the business part of the town. Sailing vessels are frequently baffled by head winds in this circuitous channel. The distance, too, of the Government piers from the town is so considerable that piers have been built by a company a mile nearer, and within these most of the steamers and propellers land. The number of emigrants and travellers of all sorts who land at Milwaukee well nigh passes belief. During the three days that I have been here, the average has been two hundred a day, and for the last eight weeks the average, I am assured has been a thousand per week. Many tons land at Racine and Southport, and will another tide of immigration come up the Mississippi and across Illinois and Indiana. But the great mass of travel and immigration comes into the Territory through Milwaukee, which is destined to be the chief commercial and manufacturing city of this Western Empire.

IMPORTANT RUMOR.—The New Orleans Courier of the 24th, mentions that there was a rumor in town, in the morning, and which the editor thinks worthy of belief, to the effect that our government has ordered all the troops on the Sabine to advance upon the Rio Grande, to repel the incensed Mexicans upon the territory of Texas.

Old Bull thinks of paying a visit to Michigan and Wisconsin. Should he conclude to display his musical qualities in these quarters, no doubt he would meet the warmest of Wolverine congratulations.

We understand that many country Postmasters are resigning their offices, in consequence of the operation of the new Postoffice law. We learn that nearly one hundred resignations were received by the Postmaster General in the course of one day.—[Washington Union.]

The scene of desolation, distress and affliction, and the extent of the calamity are nearly as great as after the former confederation; the value of the property destroyed probably greater. The population of St. John Suburb was about ten thousand, and the population of St. Roch had mostly found refuge in St. John Suburbs.

NEW ARRANGEMENT.

THE subscriber having bought out the old concern, will continue business on his own account at the old stand, where he is determined to sell goods cheaper than ever. He has been receiving for the last three weeks, a large and general assortment of Dry Goods, Boots and Shoes, Groceries and Provisions, Hardware, Crockery, Window Sash, Glass, Nails, Farming Utensils, &c. &c.

All of which will sell at a very small advance from cost, and as low as they can be bought at any establishment in the Western country. He hopes his friends and the public generally, will continue and increase the patronage they gave the old concern, and he pledges himself if they will call on him they shall be satisfied with goods and prices, and have no occasion to go over the river for "GOOD BARGAINS". To strangers I would say, the West Ward Store is in the Brick Block corner of Chestnut and Third streets, near the canal.

JUNELI R D JENNINGS.

TREMONT HOUSE. THE PROPRIETORS take pleasure in announcing that this historic favorite public house has arisen, Phoenix-like, from the ruins of the late conflagration, and is erected in a style and manner superior to what it has hitherto been, and that they are now prepared to receive the calls of the public, and their old friends and customers in particular, whose comfort and convenience they feel warranted in giving the assurance it will be their main study and avocation to ast.

Stagger to all parts of the Territory, arrive at and leave this house daily.

An extensive LIVERY STABLE is attached to this establishment, where horses and carriages may be had for any part of the country on reasonable terms. Please give us a call, and you shall be regrettis.

May 20, '45. HOLMAN & JAMES.

STUCCO PLASTER. The subscribers have just received 90 lbs. of Stucco Plaster, which they will warrant equal to any ever used in the Territory. They will make contracts for any quantity to be delivered here upon better terms than it can be obtained from Chicago or Buffalo. Also, a supply of common plaster.
